Bandol is situated on the southern coast of France. Where it receives more sunlight than Cotes du Rhone but maintains cooler temperatures regulated by the Mediterranean Sea. Mourvedre is the grape here and this rustic variety produces hearty, fruity, and slightly smokey wines with suede like tannins. Most commonly known for its fresh robust rose's but the reds here are not to be overlooked. You can find tremendous value in these beautiful provincial country style wines.

SPAIN

Rias Baixas is known for one of the most legendary fresh white wines of the world, Albarino.

The diverse region of Catalunya has many different wine making subregions. Most notably, Penedes, where they make the best versions of Spanish Sparkling (pg. 5), and Priorat, which is the ancient ancestral home to the Grenache grape (pg.15).

The towns of Sanlúcar de Baredema, Jerez de la Frontera, and Porto de Santa Maria form what is known as the "Sherry Triangle". Generally speaking, all grapes for fino style sherry are grown in the land between these cities. The bodega where the wine is made and aged in solera method is actually what imparts individual "terrior" on the wines. Bodegas situated closer to the ocean typically tend to have a "sea spray" like aroma or flavor where as wines aged more inland will have richer flavors and riper fruit characteristics.
